

Special Presentation

2011 GRIMES DISTINGUISHED LECTURER

Can Mother Nature Take a Punch?

Microbes and the BP Oil Spill in the Gulf of Mexico

Terry Hazen, Ph.D.

Acclaimed scientist and director of the Microbial Communities Division, Joint BioEnergy Institute at the U.S. Dept. of Energy's

Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory, and head of the Center for Environmental Biotechnology at DOE's Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory

Dr. Hazen holds a B.S. with honor from Michigan State University and a M.S. from Wake Forest University. He received his Ph.D. from Wake Forest in 1978, where he majored in parasitology and ecology and minored in microbiology and immunology.

Wednesday, July 27
7 p.m.

Caylor Auditorium

Gulf Coast Research Laboratory

703 East Beach Drive • Ocean Springs, MS 39564

www.usm.edu/gcrl

Reception to follow in the dining hall

THE UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN MISSISSIPPI

GULF COAST RESEARCH LABORATORY

*The Grimes Distinguished Lecturer Series is supported by the Jay and Beverly Grimes development fund,
The University of Southern Mississippi Foundation.*