Phlebotomy Certificate Program

The Phlebotomy Program will provide students with didactic and practical experience regarding the practice of phlebotomy. The first course MTC 110 Phlebotomy I (1 hour) (Phase I) will be taught via the online format and include didactic materials regarding phlebotomy. The second course MTC 111 Phlebotomy Practicum (1 hour) (Phase II) will allow the student to gain experience in the practice of phlebotomy. In order to enroll in MTC 111, the student must successfully pass MTC 110 with 75% or higher grade. The Program will be offered for credit and non-credit. Approval status from The National Accrediting Agency for Clinical Laboratory Sciences is being sought. Affiliation agreements will be developed between The University and participating hospitals for MTC 111. A certificate indicating successful completion will be awarded at the end of the Program. With program approval, advanced placement for MTC 111 is available for students with phlebotomy experience.
