

Student Housing Guide

Division of Marine Science

Edited by members of the Student Oceanographic Society

Updated Summer 2021

The Student Oceanographic Society (S.O.S.)

S.O.S. was formed at the John C. Stennis Space Center in 1992 by a group of marine science graduate students from The University of Southern Mississippi Division of Marine Science. The group was formed to provide academic and networking assistance to marine science graduate students and to offer a means for the student body to voice any concerns they may have directly to the faculty. The latter is accomplished via a faculty advisor. The current S.O.S. faculty advisor is Dr. Davin Wallace. Membership is open to all part-time and full-time students enrolled in the department of marine science.

S.O.S. is a network of students with a passion for Marine Science, and it is a valuable resource to both new and established students. Here are just a few areas in which S.O.S. can offer assistance:

- Social networking
- Help with Homework
- Rides to and from Stennis, housing accommodation upon arrival
- Proofreaders for papers and presentation
- Organize mock qualifying exams

S.O.S. encourages participation in a number of community and division based events including:

- Division social events - Annual May crawfish boil, Fall semester beach bonfire, and Halloween party
- Science fair judging at Nicholson Elementary School in Picayune, MS

Purpose of Guide

If you are a recently accepted student to the University of Southern Mississippi Division of Marine Sciences, congratulations and welcome on behalf of the Student Oceanographic Society (SOS).

The Division of Marine Sciences is located at the Stennis Space Center in Southern Mississippi. Unlike a traditional college campus, there is no on-site housing at Stennis. Instead, students must rent an apartment or house in one of the nearby towns. We understand that choosing a place to live can seem like an overwhelming task, especially if you are not familiar with the area. To help you overcome this challenge, the students of SOS have created this New Student Housing Guide.

There are three parts to this guide. The first provides information on the towns around Stennis, while the second is about apartments and houses for rent in each town. Student opinions are provided whenever possible, giving you information that you can only get from someone who has lived at those locations. Finally, there is a section at the end of this document discussing other resources beyond this document that can be used in your housing search.

Please note that these lists are not comprehensive, but are meant to be a starting point for your search. There are other housing options besides those listed here. In addition, the opinions expressed in this document are strictly those of the students. SOS and the Division of Marine Science do not endorse or oppose any specific town or living establishment. Finally, while every effort was made to ensure accurate information, it is important that you double check all information yourself before choosing a place to live. SOS and the Division are not responsible for any inaccurate or out of date information in this guide.

It is our hope that this guide will allow you to take advantage of the knowledge of past students when selecting a place to live, and will make the process easier for you than it was for us. Best of luck, and we look forward to having you join us at the Division of Marine Science.

Sincerely,
The members of the Student Oceanographic Society

Other Ways SOS Can Help You

Roommates: Several students choose to live with one or more roommates. This has the advantages of reducing living costs, carpooling, and promoting friendship with your fellow students. It can be difficult to find a roommate when you do not know any of the other students, so the students of SOS would like to help you. If you would like to live with a roommate, please contact the SOS president by email. We will keep your name and contact information on record. If other new students contact us looking for a roommate, we will provide you with each other's contact information. We can also email your contact information to current students telling them that you are looking for a roommate. After this, it will be up to you to decide if you wish to room together and to work out the details.

Looking at the house/apartment: SOS recognizes that it may be difficult or impossible for you to look at an apartment or rental house if you do not live in the area. Therefore, we will be glad to help you in this process. We can do this by driving past the property and taking pictures, or by going to a showing in your place. We can ask the landlord any questions you want at the meeting, send you pictures of the interior, and give you our general opinion about the place. It will be up to you to make the appointment for the showing with the landlord and explain that another student will be going to the meeting in your place. Please coordinate with the student and the landlord to find a meeting time that will not inconvenience either of them.

Carpooling: It may not be possible for all students to obtain a car or a United States driver's license immediately after arrival. There is also no public transportation to Stennis or around Southern Mississippi. Therefore, SOS is happy to help set up carpooling for you with another student living in your area. It will be up to you and the other student to agree upon the exact terms of this carpool, such as splitting gas money and how long the carpool will last.

If you would like SOS's help with any of these things, please email the current SOS president, provided earlier in the document. Also check the SOS webpage for up to date contact information.

Other Housing Resources

This living guide is not comprehensive. It is only meant to give you a sample of your living options. There are many other resources that you can use to aid in your search. A few of these are listed below.

Online Searching: A quick google for apartments in a given town will bring up several websites with apartment listings. This is a good place to start. Each website will vary, but these listings will usually include pictures of the property, general information about the property, and contact information. An online search will usually only bring up mid to high end apartment/housing complexes, which pay to advertise on these websites. Lower end and independently owned properties will generally not be found this way. Sometimes the search may bring up properties not in the town you searched for, so double check the location of properties listed in your search results.

Craigslist: Craigslist is hit and miss. Not many people in the region seem to use Craigslist for posting ads. However, this site is worth a look. This is a good way to find independantly owned properties that will not appear on a general web search, often for cheaper rent.

Online Newspapers: Local newspapers often have online classifieds sections with apartment and rental house listings. This is a good way to find independantly owned properties that will not appear on a general web search, often for cheaper rent. However, the ads are usually very small and only provide very basic information, in some cases without pictures or addresses. A google search for newspapers in a given town should bring up their websites.

Google Maps / Street View: No actual apartment listings, but this is a quick way to see the location of your house/apartment. Google street view is a part of google maps, and can show you photographs of your apartment and neighborhood as if you were driving past them.
