Center for Logistics, Trade and Transportation Hosts Workshop

The Center for Logistics, Trade, and Transportation at the University of Southern Mississippi recently hosted a two-day workshop titled, "Waterway Transportation Curriculum Development for Secondary Education."

The workshop was conceived as part of a partnership among the Center for Logistics, Trade, and Transportation, the Mississippi Waterway Center at Southern Mississippi State University and the Mississippi Department of Education to increase awareness of waterway transportation education among K-12 school children.

The purpose of the workshop was not only to share enhanced knowledge and experience on waterway operations and international freight but also to provide K-12 educators with educational and experiential tools and materials in the context of curriculum development through project-based learning.
