In this class we will explore the avant-garde world of poetry and painting that shaped American Modernism. Gathering in the salon of Walter Arensberg in New York City and inspired by the exhibits at Alfred Stieglitz’s Greenwich Village gallery Stevens and Williams changed the very idea of American poetry itself. How they did that and what they created will be the focus of this class. Two papers and some in-class writing.