THE 46TH ANNUAL FAY B. KAIGLER

CHILDREN’S BOOK FESTIVAL

SCHOOL OF LIBRARY AND INFORMATION SCIENCE

PROGRAM

APRIL 10-12, 2013
The University of Southern Mississippi Medallion is the highlight of the Children’s Book Festival. Awarded annually for outstanding contributions in the field of children’s literature, this year’s recipient is Jon Scieszka. Silver medallions are cast for the recipient, for the president of The University of Southern Mississippi, for members of the Medallion Selection Committee, and for the de Grummond Children’s Literature Collection’s permanent display. In addition, bronze medallions are cast and are available for purchase during the festival.

2013 Jon Scieszka
Jon Scieszka was born in Flint, Michigan, to Shirley, a registered nurse, and Louis, an elementary school principal. As one of six children – all boys – he attended military school and developed interests in various fields, including science, and even considered becoming a doctor. While he enjoyed reading comic books and MAD Magazine, he was not particularly interested in the traditional reading curriculum offered in the classroom. Instead, he preferred independent reading at his local public library. Still pondering his career path, he studied both English and science at Albion College and graduated in 1976. After briefly living in Detroit, Michigan, he moved to New York City and procured a Master of Fine Arts in fiction from Columbia University in 1980. Clearly a man of varied interests, Scieszka was a painter and a lifeguard (though not simultaneously, as far as we know) and ultimately decided to pursue a career as a writer in Brooklyn, New York.

By happenstance, he applied for a position as an elementary school teacher and pursued that career for 10 years. He taught various subjects, from computers to history, to several grade levels. It is this unique perspective as a teacher that fostered growth in his development as a writer. Newsweek notes that, “As a father and former teacher, what Scieszka knows is that reading is the key not only to excelling in school but also fulfillment as an adult.” Here he found the ultimate audience for the madcap fun stories that he loved to write: kids. Sparked by this surge of creativity, he decided to take a year off from teaching to pursue writing full-time.

His wife, Jeri, introduced him to Lane Smith, an illustrator who soon became his creative partner. Think of them as the John Lennon/Paul McCartney of children’s literature. After reading Scieszka's story, A. Wolf's Tale, Smith agreed to create several illustrations to accompany it. The duo commenced seeking publishers for this story that narrated the customary fairy tale The Three Little Pigs from the Big Bad Wolf’s perspective. Unfortunately, several publishers deemed the story as too gloomy for children. The duo held steadfast, however, and continued to show the book. A. Wolf’s Tale eventually became titled The True Story of the 3 Little Pigs! and was published by Viking Books in 1989. Instantly embraced and heralded as a modern classic, this picture book secured a spot in the upper echelon of children’s literature. It has sold more than three million copies and been translated into 14 languages. The popularity and critical acclaim of this title was soon followed by The Stinky Cheese Man and Other Fairly Stupid Tales, which was the recipient of a 1993 Caldecott Honor. Other titles in his canon include the picture books and chapter books The Frog Prince Continued; The Book That Jack Wrote; Math Curse; Squids Will Be Squids; Baloney, Henry P.; Science Verse; Seen Art?; Cowboy and Octopus; Knucklehead: Tall Tales and Almost True Stories of Growing up Scieszka and Robot Zot. He also is the author of the Time Warp Trio series, the Trucktown series, and the Spaceheads series. Scieszka and Smith have collaborated on eight picture books, in addition to eight books in the Time Warp Trio series.

Scieszka's engaging literary conceits always twist popular notions of what literature should deliver to children, whether he spins the narrative structure of a traditional fairy tale (The True Story of the 3 Little Pigs!), personifies vehicles as sympathetic creatures struggling with bravery (Melvin Might! of the Trucktown series), or presents science through the prism of poetic verse (Science Verse). In one of his noted picture books, The Frog Prince Continued, Scieszka subverts many elements from fairytales, including gingerbread houses, witches, spells, pumpkins, frogs and carriages and weaves them into a witty, singular story. The Stinky Cheese Man and Other Fairly Stupid Tales is perhaps his fullest realization of stylistic rebellion and appropriation of classic fairy tales within narrative plot devices. This delightful collection of stories finds the ugly duckling growing up to remain an ugly duckling, the tortoise running and the rabbit growing hair indefinitely, the proverbial frog only moonlighting as a prince, and the conventional prince and princess of fairy tale lore living almost happily ever after, albeit under a cloud of dishonesty. His unique background and injections of humor that challenge the traditional paradigm of children’s literature have constituted him as a definitive and widely acclaimed literary force.
In 2008, the Library of Congress named him National Ambassador for Young People’s Literature. He relished this opportunity to promote literacy and to get kids excited about reading books, even if their interests are with titles or genres that do not fit the accepted mold of children’s literature. He is the founder of Guys Read, a literacy program that encourages young boys to read by expanding their notions of reading as an hobby, urging self-selection, fostering communications, and providing them with male role models that facilitate reading both in the classroom and as a recreational activity. He has published several books for Guys Read, including Guys Write for Guys Read, a collection of stories, comics, and other boy-focused material created by authors and illustrators at generating boys’ reading interests.

Scieszka currently lives in Brooklyn, New York, with his wife Jeri and his children, Casey and Jake. His stories reflect inspirations from a variety of sources, and he notes that the key to writing and creating is to read and think broadly. As told to Scholastic, Scieszka says, “I read everything — comic books, newspapers, cereal boxes, poems — anything with writing on it. My favorite things to read are fairy tales, myths and legends. When I’m not reading, I listen to music, watch cartoons, and sit in my chair and just think about stuff. I’ve always thought about being an author. One of the first books I read was Green Eggs and Ham, by Dr. Seuss. It made me realize that books could be goofy. It’s the book that made The Stinky Cheese Man possible!” Let us hope that the 2013 Southern Miss Medallion Recipient continues to hone his ideas into fanciful stories for many, many years.

2013 SPEAKERS

CANDACE FLEMING is the author of many books for young people, most notably biographies and historical picture books. Amelia Lost: The Life and Disappearance of Amelia Earhart, won the 2012 Golden Kite Award for Nonfiction, while The Lincolns: A Scrapbook Look at Abraham and Mary received the 2009 Boston Globe Horn Book Award for Nonfiction, was a School Library Journal Best Book, was named the Kirkus Reviews Best Book for Young Adults, and was an ALA Notable Book. Her biography of P.T. Barnum, The Great and Only Barnum, was named a 2010 ALSC Notable Book, an ALA Best Book for Young Adults, and was nominated for the YALSA Award in Excellence in Nonfiction for Young Adults. Several of her other titles, including Ben Franklin’s Almanac, Muncha! Muncha! Muncha!, Gabriella’s Song, Our Eleanor and Fabled Fourth Graders of Aesop Elementary School have won both national and state level honors.

Although Ms. Fleming has been enjoying words and stories since her early childhood, it wasn’t until graduating from college and having children of her own that she decided to become an author of books for young people. She wrote for three years prior to having her first title published. To date, she has published at least 28 children’s books and names Muncha! Muncha! Muncha! as one of her favorites. She grew up in central Illinois—not far from the home of Abraham Lincoln’s parents—and she currently lives near Chicago. Fleming can be found online at www.candacefleming.com.

TED LEWIN grew up in an old frame house in Buffalo, New York, with two brothers, one sister, two parents, and a number of pets, including, for a short time, a lion, which belonged to his professional-wrestler brother. He always wanted to be an illustrator. As a child, he copied the work of illustrators and painters he admired, such as N.C. Wyeth and Winslow Homer. Needing money for education, he followed his brother into the professional wrestling business. He is an avid traveler, and many of his books are inspired by trips to such places as the Amazon River, the Sahara Desert, Botswana, Egypt, Lapland and India. Touch and Go is a collection of stories about the adventures Ted had while researching his books. Gorilla Walk is his first collaboration with his wife, Betsy, and is about their trek to see the mountain gorillas in Uganda. They’ve just completed their second collaboration, Elephant Quest, set in the Okavango Delta of Botswana. Ted’s current project is about a Civil War drummer boy.
Betsy Lewin grew up in Clearfield, Pa., and can’t remember ever wanting to be anything but an artist. Her mother (a kindergarten teacher) read to Betsy and her brother every night. Her illustrations are strongly influenced by the gentle watercolors of Beatrix Potter and the energetic line and humor of James Stevenson and Quentin Blake. She initially designed greeting cards before writing and illustrating stories for children’s magazines. When an editor asked her to expand one of her stories into a book, she jumped at the chance and has never looked back, publishing many books individually and collaboratively. Betsy Lewin’s most recent books include You Can Do It! and Where is Tippy Toes?, and she has illustrated a number of books, including the Click, Clack, Moo series.

Ted and Betsy both studied at the Pratt Institute and live in Brooklyn, New York, where they share their home with two cats, Slick and Chopper.

Grace Lin grew up in upstate New York with her parents and two sisters. While the other sisters became scientists, Lin became an artist. Surprisingly enough, being an artist was not Lin’s first choice. She first dreamed of being a champion ice skater and drew many pictures of herself twirling and dancing on the ice. Unfortunately, Lin had neither the talent nor coordination to make it to skating stardom. However, the pictures she drew of herself held much promise and quickly became Lin’s career focus. After attending the Rhode Island School of Design, Lin set out to achieve her dream of creating children’s books. Her first book, The Ugly Vegetables, was published in 1999 and was a hit. As well as being an American Booksellers Association’s “Pick of the List” and a Bank’s Street College Best Book of the Year, The Ugly Vegetables was nominated for the California Young Reader Children’s Choice Award and named a Growing Good Kids Book Award CLASSIC. Lin followed that success with the publication of more than a dozen books, including Dim Sum for Everyone! and Lissy’s Friends. Lin’s first children’s novel, The Year of the Dog, was released to glowing praise in 2006 and nominated to the TX Bluebonnet list, which she followed with The Year of the Rat. Her novel, Where the Mountain Meets the Moon, was awarded the 2010 Newbery Honor, chosen for Al Roker’s Today Show Kid’s Book Club and was a New York Times Bestseller. Lin’s early reader, Ling & Ting, was awarded with the Theodor Geisel Honor in 2011. Lin, herself, has been honored by the Boston Public Library with the Literary Lights for Children Award and was an Astrid Lindgren Memorial Award nominee for the United States. Her most recent novel, Starry River in the Sky, has received numerous starred reviews. Lin lives in Florence, Mass., with her husband, Alex, and daughter, Hazel.

Eric Rohmann received a Caldecott Honor in 1999 for Time Flies and the 2003 Caldecott Medal for My Friend Rabbit. Besides being an author, Rohmann is also a painter and a former teacher. Rohmann received a BS in art and an MS in studio art from Illinois State University, a MFA in printmaking and fine bookmaking from Arizona State University, and has also studied anthropology and biology. He taught introductory drawing, fine bookmaking and printmaking at St. Olaf College in Minnesota. When asked why he writes and illustrates children’s books, Rohmann answers, “Children are the best audience. They are curious, enthusiastic, impulsive, generous and pleased by simple joys. They laugh easily at the ridiculous and are willing to believe the absurd.” Both Oh, No! and Bone Dog, his two latest works, obtained starred reviews from Kirkus Reviews. His art is influenced by the comics he grew up reading, as well as by the work of Robert McCloskey, Maurice Sendak and others. His “favorite part of the bookmaking process is the beginning: exploring, doodling, daydreaming, discovering.” Rohmann was born in Riverside, Illinois, and resides in the suburbs of Chicago.
TROUT FISHING IN AMERICA
COLEEN SALLEY STORYTELLING AWARD RECIPIENT

Trout Fishing in America has more than 30 years of unique musical experience, capped by their most recent release, a children’s book/CD combo entitled Chicken Joe Forgets Something Important. Over their musical career, they have been nominated for four Grammys, as well as being nominated for numerous other awards. They have been featured on The Today Show, NPR’s All Things Considered, and The Dr. Demento Show, among others. Band members Ezra Idlet and Keith Grimwood met as members of Houston-based electric folk/rock band St. Elmo’s Fire, which dissolved in 1979, but as friends and musical partners, they continued to write and perform together. Since the birth of TFIA in 1979, the duo has garnered three National Indie Awards and multiple Parents Choice Gold and American Library Awards. TFIA has expanded their touring territory to more than 40 states and several Canadian provinces. One of the missions of TFIA is to share knowledge and encourage art. To accomplish this purpose, they have developed song writing workshops for teachers and students that illustrate how art and music come from the fabric of everyday life. Their willingness to make fun of our most annoying and sometimes disgusting habits in one song and then touch our hearts with tender and passionate images of family life in the next is what makes the connection between Trout Fishing in America and their audience so real.

THE COLEEN SALLEY STORYTELLING AWARD

The Coleen Salley Storytelling Award has been established to honor the memory of Children’s Book Festival supporter, storyteller and children’s literature advocate, Coleen Salley. Throughout her career, Ms. Salley worked tirelessly to promote quality children’s literature and reading. Each year the award recognizes a storyteller whose mission reflects the ideals and dedication to the field that Ms. Salley personified. The session is supported by the family of Coleen Salley, the Coleen Salley Storytelling Endowment and The University of Southern Mississippi Foundation.

THE FAY B. KAIGLER-RUTH LAMONT AWARD

The first presentation of the Kaigler-Lamont Award was made in 1998. The generous financial support of Fay Kaigler of McComb, Miss., made the award possible. Miss Kaigler was well-known for her love of children and devoted herself for many years as an elementary school teacher to enhancing books and reading in the lives of children. Her students were soon hooked on books. In retirement, she continued to promote books and reading in her local public library. Her dear friend, Ruth Lamont (1920-2011), who for many years was a successful school librarian in Baton Rouge, La., shared her passion for making books integral to children’s lives.

The Kaigler-Lamont Award recognizes distinguished accomplishments in promoting children’s reading by librarians and teachers in Mississippi schools and by children’s librarians in the public libraries of Mississippi.

THE MAGNOLIA CHILDREN’S CHOICE AWARD

The Magnolia Children’s Choice Award introduces kids to current literature with a goal of instilling a love of reading. In establishing this award, Mississippi joins the other 49 states in recognizing excellence in children’s literature and getting young readers excited about new books through children’s choice awards. The award was established in 2010 and is a partnership between the Mississippi Department of Education, the Mississippi Library Commission, the Mississippi Reading Association, The University of Southern Mississippi’s School of Library and Information Science, the DeGrummond Collection, Mississippi Children’s Museum and the Mississippi Library Association. Linda Perez, librarian at Madison Station Elementary, is credited with spearheading the push to create a children’s choice award for the state of Mississippi.

In its original inception, the votes were cast by children in grades 3-5 only. In 2013, the categories expanded to include grades K-2 and 6-8, and the 2014 awards will include grades 9-12, allowing more of Mississippi’s children to participate. Children in public, private or homeschooled settings are eligible to vote. After reading the nominated books, the children turn their votes in to their librarian, who will cast the votes electronically. In order to be eligible to make the reading list (and ultimately perhaps be selected by the children as the winner), the books must have been published within the past three years, including the current year up until the suggestion period closes (translated editions publication date must be within the past three years, and reprints are not eligible). Titles that have won a national award (i.e., Caldecott, Newbery, Sibert, Coretta Scott King, Pura Belpre, National Book Award, etc.) are not eligible for the Magnolia Award, but honor books are, and either the author or illustrator must be living. Nominations may be done by the public and the committees, but final selection of the titles is determined by the committee. The number of titles on the final lists varies but should not be less than 10. It is the goal of the selection committees to have final lists that are broad in subject matter and cover a variety of topics and genres.

Previous Winners

The de Grummond Children's Literature Collection is one of North America's leading research centers in the field of children's literature. While the collection has many strengths, the main focus is on American and British children's literature, historical as well as contemporary.

The collection holds original materials and published works in the McCain Library and Archives on the Hattiesburg campus of The University of Southern Mississippi.

The collection is named for Dr. Lena Y. de Grummond, who founded the collection in 1966. She assembled materials that were sent by contributors from around the world. More than 1,200 artists, illustrators and collectors have generously donated books and original materials to the collection.

A major acquisition is that of the Ezra Jack Keats collection. The original artwork, typescripts, dummies and preliminary sketches for 36 books by the Caldecott Award-winning author/illustrator complement the archives of his personal and professional papers already housed in the de Grummond Collection.

Please visit the de Grummond exhibit room located on the second floor of Cook Library, which contains highlights from the de Grummond Children's Literature Collection, as well as from past Fay B. Kaigler Children's Book Festivals.

WENDELL MINOR
DE GRUMMOND CHILDREN'S LITERATURE LECTURER

Wendell Minor is the illustrator of many award-winning picture books for children, such as Mojave by Diane Siebert, Abe Lincoln Remembers by Ann Turner, The Seashore Book by Charlotte Zolotow, and Reaching for the Moon by Buzz Aldrin, as well as numerous books about the outdoors with his frequent collaborator, Jean Craighead George, including Luck: The Story of a Sandhill Crane. Minor was determined to be an artist from the time he was in the fourth grade and received encouragement from parents and teachers. He graduated from the Ringling School of Art and Design in 1966, and in 1968 did his first work in publishing by illustrating a full-color book cover. He made the transition to illustrating children's books in 1988. His artistic inspirations include Winslow Homer and Norman Rockwell; his love of the natural world and sense of humor are apparent in his work. His solo work, Grand Canyon: Exploring a Natural Wonder, betrays his love of nature and landscape, while with his illustrations for Scribner's 1999 edition of Jack London's The Call of the Wild, he was able to return to his roots and his childhood. Minor states that his goal in writing “is to inspire children to go out into the fields and woods and mountains to see wildlife in its natural habitat and to give the children a positive perspective about the beauty that abounds in the world.” Minor’s latest title is If You Spent a Day with Thoreau at Walden Pond. The Minors live in Connecticut, where they share their home and studio with their cats, Sofie and Cindercat.
THE EZRA JACK KEATS LECTURE

Ezra Jack Keats (1916–83) is internationally recognized as one of the most influential creators of picture books in the 20th century. He was author and illustrator of more than 20 books and provided the illustrations for an additional 63 titles in a distinguished career that spanned four decades. The Caldecott-winning The Snowy Day (Viking, 1962) was revolutionary by sympathetically dealing with the experiences of an African-American child. A multiracial and urban world was beautifully reflected in many of his other books. Although comfortable and adept with many mediums, Keats is justly remembered as a true master of collage. His technique of using such favorite characters as Peter, Louie and Willie in a series of stories is just one reason why the stories of Ezra Jack Keats continue to be loved by children of all ages.

The University of Southern Mississippi is very proud that Ezra Jack Keats was the 12th recipient of the Southern Miss Medallion for outstanding contributions to children’s literature. In 1985, the Ezra Jack Keats Foundation established the Ezra Jack Keats Lectureship at the annual Children’s Book Festival. Since then, the lectures have been given by the following distinguished individuals:

K.T. Horning has served as the director of the Cooperative Children’s Book Center (CCBC) at the University of Madison–Wisconsin since 2002. Prior to this role, she worked at the CCBC as a student and was a children’s librarian at Madison Public Library for nine years. She was the 2006–07 president of the Association of Library Service to Children, a division of the American Library Association, and is past president of the United States Board on Books for Young People. Her involvement in the library field has earned her national recognition. She received the Scholastic Library Publishing Award from ALA in 2009, and she was chosen as the 2010 May Hill Arbuthnot Lecturer, an honor given by ALA for outstanding contributions to the children’s literature field. Her lecture, given at Riverside, Calif., was titled “Can Children’s Books Save the World? Advocates for Diversity in Children’s Books and Libraries.” Horning has served as chair for award committees including the Batchelder Award (1997; ALA/ALSC), the Newbery Award (1995; ALA/ALSC), the Americas Award (Consortium of Latin American Studies Program at University of Wisconsin–Madison), the Charlotte Zolotow Award (CCBC) and the Hans Christian Andersen Award (United States Board on Books for Young People). Beginning in 2013, she is part of the selection committee for the 2015 Laura Ingalls Wilder Award. Horning is the author or co-author of several titles, including From Cover to Cover: Evaluating and Reviewing Children’s Books. She grew up in Des Moines and received a Bachelor of Arts in linguistics and a master’s degree in library and information studies from the University of Wisconsin–Madison.

The Ezra Jack Keats Foundation, in partnership with the de Grummond Children’s Literature Collection, is proud to present the 2013 Ezra Jack Keats New Writer and New Illustrator Book Awards during the Fay B. Kaigler Children’s Book Festival at The University of Southern Mississippi.

The New Writer and New Illustrator Awards are unique in that they honor children’s book authors and artists at the start of their careers and encourage them to make books for children in the spirit of Keats: captivating books that portray the universal qualities of childhood, a strong and supportive family, and the multicultural nature of our world.

The mission of the Ezra Jack Keats Foundation is to help educators bring the joy of reading and learning to children in public schools and libraries through the national Ezra Jack Keats Minigrant Program and the Ezra Jack Keats Bookmaking Competition in New York City. We also fund scholarships in art and music at various museums, libraries and academies, and concerts and reading programs in public parks and libraries. We are especially proud to support the Keats Archive at the de Grummond Collection.

2013 WORKSHOP AND BREAKOUT SESSION PRESENTER BIOS

Katie D. Anderson lives in the literary mecca of Oxford, Mississippi, where she believes she inhaled the desire to write from one of the trees lining William Faulkner’s front yard. When she’s not writing, Katie can be found hanging out with her husband, their two daughters and one adorable dog. Kiss & Make Up is her first novel.

Carolyn Angus is the director of the George G. Stone Center for Children’s Books, Claremont Graduate University, California. She also was the chair of USBBY Outstanding International Books Committee in 2008 and 2009 and a member of the 2011 Randolph Caldecott Committee. Carolyn has 25 years of experience as a library director, reviewer and lecturer in children’s and young adult literature.

Ann Mulloy Ashmore, MPH, MLIS is an associate professor of library services at Delta State University in Cleveland, Mississippi. Ms. Ashmore also worked as a collection specialist at the de Grummond Children’s Literature Collection at The University of Southern Mississippi. “Becoming Margret Rey” is based on her second major paper about Hans and Margret Rey, co-creators of the Curious George children’s books, titled Margret Sans Rey: The Life and Career of Margarete Elisabeth Waldstein, 1925-1935.

Kathy Barco is currently literacy coordinator with Albuquerque’s public library system. Prior to taking that position, she was a children’s librarian for six years. Kathy was youth services coordinator at the New Mexico State Library from 2001 to 2006. She received the New Mexico Library Association’s Leadership Award in 2006. Kathy earned her MLIS from Southern Miss in 1997.

Kim Becnel is currently assistant professor of library science at Appalachian State University in Boone, N.C. She has previously worked as a youth services librarian for St. Tammany Parish Library in Mandeville, La., and as Juvenile Services coordinator for Union County Public Library based in Monroe, N.C.

Brenda Black received her undergraduate degree from The University of Southern Mississippi and a graduate degree from Mississippi College. She is currently the librarian at Pelahatchie Elementary, where she daily shares her love of language, literacy and learning with children in grades K–6. Classroom experience includes teaching in lower elementary and working with special needs children.

Robyn Hood Black writes and draws in the foothills of north Georgia. Her books include Sir Mike and Wolves. Her poetry is featured in Georgia Heard’s The Arrow Finds Its Mark – A Book of Found Poems, as well as in Sylvia Vardell and Janet Wong’s The Poetry Friday Anthology. Her poems have also appeared in Ladybug and Hopscotch for Girls, and in leading haiku journals.

F.T. Bradley is the author of Double Vision (Harper Children’s), the first in a series of adventure books for reluctant readers. She lives on the Mississippi Gulf Coast with her husband and two daughters. A strong advocate for encouraging reluctant reader outreach, F.T. gets to practice her persuasion skills daily on her tween reluctant reader.

Anna Brannin is currently in her first year as librarian and seventh grade reading teacher at St. Stanislaus College in Bay St. Louis. She writes a monthly book column for her neighborhood’s online newsletter, “The Fourth Ward Cleaver.” Anna is a children’s and YA book devotee and enjoys creating exciting and unique library programming for kids and teens.

Nancy L. Brashear, PhD is the former chair of teacher education for Azusa Pacific University (California) and is currently a professor in the English department, where she specializes in teaching children’s and young adult literature. Credentialed with K–12 teaching experience, she also presents regularly in international, national and state venues on topics related to connecting literature, literacy and readers of all ages. She enjoys mentoring novice writers.
Carolyn Brown is a writer, educator and independent scholar, and has taught at the University of North Carolina-Greensboro, Elon University and Millsaps College. She is writing a second young adult biography on Mississippi writer Margaret Walker, which will be published in 2014. A Daring Life is the first young adult biography of Eudora Welty and was the Mississippi Library Commission’s selection at the 2012 National Book Festival’s Pavilion of the States.

Dianne Butler was the 2012 Kaigler-Lamont winner, being recognized for her work in her library and community. She has presented several workshops at the Children’s Book Festival, as well as at LAMP and the Petal School District. Currently, she is the librarian at Magee Middle School, where she works successfully with 600 hard-to-reach fifth through eighth graders.

Dr. Charlene Carter is a clinical assistant professor in the School of Education at the University of Houston Clear Lake. She teaches courses in both reading and early childhood education. She is the treasurer for the Greater Houston Area Reading Council and Texas Association for the Improvement of Reading. She serves as the faculty advisor for the University of Houston Clear Lake Student Reading Council.

Dr. Jane Claes is an associate professor at the School Library and Information Science at the University of Houston Clear Lake. She has served on the American Library Association’s Robert F. Sibert Committee, the Notable Children’s Recordings Committee and Notable Videos for Children Committee. Dr. Claes teaches Administration of Library Services, Collection Development, Cataloging for School Libraries and Children’s Literature.

Chuck Galey has illustrated more than 70 educational books and 10 children’s picture books, one that he authored. When he is not working on books in his studio in Jackson, Mississippi, he is presenting exciting school programs that inspire and astonish students. His programs, listed on the Mississippi Arts Commission’s Teaching Artist Roster, encourage students to be creative in their reading, writing and art.

Emily Grossenbacher is the Children’s Department manager and buyer at Lemuria Books in Jackson, Miss. She organizes everything from author events to the Oz First Editions Club and spends most days happily surrounded by books.

Sarah Frances Hardy graduated from Davidson College with a Bachelor of Arts in fine art, and she studied for two summers at Parsons School of Design in New York and Paris. She has worked as a fine artist and a lawyer before switching gears to write and illustrate children’s books. Her debut book, Puzzled by Pink, was published by Viking Children’s Books in April of 2012.

Dr. Janet Hilbun is an assistant professor in the Department of Library and Information Sciences at the University of North Texas. A veteran of more than 15 years in education, Dr. Hilbun has been a middle school librarian, a reading teacher and an English teacher, and currently teaches children and young adult literature. Drs. Hilbun and Claes have co-authored Coast to Coast: Exploring State Book Awards, published in 2010 by Libraries Unlimited.

Jo S. Kittinger is the author of more than 25 books for children, including fiction and nonfiction, leveled readers, picture books and middle grade nonfiction. Rosa’s Bus: The Ride to Civil Rights won a 2011 Crystal Kite Award. In addition, Jo serves as a regional advisor for the Southern Breeze region (Ala., Ga., Miss.) of the Society of Children’s Book Writers and Illustrators.

Irene Latham, former Alabama Poet of the Year, is the author of two award-winning volumes of poetry for adults. Her first collection for children, Dear Wandering Wildebeest, is forthcoming from Millbrook Press/Lerner in 2014. She is also the author of two middle grade novels, Leaving Gee’s Bend (Putnam/Penguin, 2010) and Don’t Feed the Boy (Roaring Brook/Macmillan, 2012).

Bobbie Malone earned her doctorate in American history at Tulane University after teaching elementary school for 10 years. Her dissertation became the biography, Rabbi Max Heller: Reformer, Zionist, Southerner, published by the University of Alabama Press. Bobbie recently retired from her 15+ year tenure as director of the Office of School Services at the Wisconsin Historical Society, where she wrote or co-authored many publications for state classrooms on Wisconsin history.

Beck McDowell is a former NBPTS middle and high school teacher who has taught everything from AP language classes to remedial grammar labs, literary magazines to school newspapers, and French to Earth science. She and her students built the website www.NotRequiredReading.com to help other teens find good books. Now an author, her mission to help students find books they'll love including writing them. She currently lives in Huntsville, Alabama, but grew up in New Orleans and Tylertown, Mississippi.

Heather Montgomery is an author of children's nonfiction and a master teacher who uses yuck appeal to engage young minds. During a typical library visit, snail poop, petrified parts and tree guts inspire reluctant writers and encourage scientific thinking. Heather has a BS in biology and a MS in environmental education; her 10th book, Wild Discoveries: Wacky New Animals, has just been published by Scholastic.

Nettie Moore, Denise McOwen and Kay Hutcherson are youth specialists for First Regional Library. They are experienced in planning and implementing Skype programs. Nettie is at the Southaven Library, Denise is in Hernando, and Kay works in Sardis. They have a combined experience of 50 years in childcare centers, schools and public libraries.

Jamie Campbell Naidoo, PhD is an associate professor at the University of Alabama School of Library and Information Studies. He teaches and researches in the areas of youth literature and outreach to diverse populations. He recently published Rainbow Family Collections: Selecting and Using Children's Books with Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender and Queer Content (Libraries Unlimited, 2012).

Reneé Nicolo has organized and chaired a successful Young Authors’ Conference, hosting more than 74 nationally known award-winning authors and illustrators for the past 20 years. She is a teacher, wife, mother, sister, friend and grandmother. She is a 1981 graduate of The University of Southern Mississippi.

Claudia Nisbett is professor of education at Belhaven University in Jackson, Mississippi. She has been chair of the Education department at Faulkner University, a past elementary principal and elementary teacher in the classroom. She is involved in teaching reading and literacy courses at the college.

Valerie Nye is currently the library director at the Institute of American Indian Arts in Santa Fe and has worked in academic libraries for the last seven years. Nye has co-authored books on a range of subjects, including Flannery O’Connor, breakfast and intellectual freedom. She holds a master’s degree in library and information science from the University of Wisconsin–Madison.

Claudia Pearson holds an MA in children’s literature from Hollins University, and is co-regional advisor for the Southern Breeze Region (Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia) of the International Society of Children’s Book Writers and Illustrators. As the editor of Look Again Press, she has published several texts analyzing literature for young readers.

Jon C. Pope is a faculty member in the Department of English at Appalachian State University. An alumnus of The University of Southern Mississippi’s School of Library and Information Science, he volunteers regularly at his local public library.

Brenda Pritchett is a storyteller listed on the Mississippi Arts Commission Performing and Teaching Artist Rosters. She holds a master’s in education in reading literacy from Mississippi University for Women. She has 15 years’ experience in school and public library services and a 35+ year career as a storyteller. She frequently leads conferences/workshops on the local, regional and state levels.
Kim F. Ridley is the acquisitions editor of Little Roni Publishers. She is also the author of The C. Walker Adventure Series. Little Roni Publishers is celebrating their upcoming release, The Castle of Family Secrets.

Diane Z. Shore - After nine and one-half years, 385 rejections, and a forest of sloppy copies, teacher-turned-author Diane Z. Shore published her first picture book, Bus-A-Saurus Bop, a rollicking, rhyming, read-aloud and winner of the 2004 Children's Choice Award. Diane says her short attention span, limited vocabulary and immaturity prepared her well to be a children's writer. As a child she loved Amelia Bedelia and wanted to move into in the Berenstain Bears' tree house.

Kristen Sipper-Denlinger is an associate professor in the English department of Azusa Pacific University. She teaches courses in children's and young adult literature and is particularly interested in the historical contexts of literature and trends in young adult fiction.

Sammie Thorell is a teacher turned elementary librarian. “During the 20 years I have been a librarian, I have used the ideas taken from storytellers, authors and classes in literature to create a love for reading in young children. Over the past 10 years, Dr. Kerry Holmes (Ole Miss) has used my presentation for her senior education classes.”

Nancy Varian is the director of the Center for Professional Development and a professor at Malone University in Canton, Ohio. She has traveled all over the world and loves to teach children about other places and people. She teaches workshops and classes on cultural diversity and cultural responsiveness.

Ally Watkins is the Youth Services supervisor at the Pearl Public Library in Pearl, Miss. She coordinates collection development and programming for patrons from birth to age 18. When she isn't in her library (though her young patrons often assume she lives there), she can usually be found in a quiet corner with her nose in a book.

April Halprin Wayland's picture book, New Year at the Pier—a Rosh Hashanah Story, won the Sydney Taylor Gold Medal for the best Jewish Children's Picture Book of the Year, awarded by the Association of Jewish Libraries. Her critically acclaimed novel in poems, Girl Coming in for a Landing, and her picture books have garnered numerous awards including the Lee Bennett Hopkins Honor Award for Children's Poetry, the Myra Cohn Livingston Award for Poetry and MommyCare's Book of the Year.

Lawrence Webster is a librarian and nonprofit consultant, focusing on advocacy, public policy, strategic planning and board development. In her recent book about the Petershams, Under the North Light, she combined her love of illustrated books and her interest in American culture with the riches of the deGrummond collection. She has an MA in religion from Florida State University and an MLS from SUNY Albany. She is a fellow of the National Center for Education Statistics and certified by the American Public Relations Society.

Teresa Welsh earned her MLIS and PhD degrees from the University of Tennessee and has taught at The University of Southern Mississippi School of Librarg and Information Science since summer 2003. Teaching and research interests include information literacy, historical research, bibliometric research, information retrieval and archival studies.

Cynthia Williams is a certified school media specialist at Coast Episcopal School in Long Beach, Mississippi, with more than 15 years of experience in school libraries. She also serves on the 2013 Theodor Seuss Geisel Book Award Committee sponsored by ALSC. She received her MLIS from The University of Southern Mississippi's School of Library and Information Science in 1996.

Nancy Wright is a senior lecturer and faculty liaison in the School of Education at University of Houston Clear Lake. For many years, she taught in Texas elementary schools and served as a language arts curriculum writer and training specialist. She currently teaches children's literature and serves in a mentoring program for first-generation college education students.

THE HISTORY OF THE CHILDREN’S BOOK FESTIVAL AT THE UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN MISSISSIPPI

In 1968 the university and the Library Science department, chaired by Dr. Warren Tracy, hosted a Conference on the Writing, Illustrating and Publishing of Children’s Books, the first of what soon became the annual Children’s Book Festival. Two years earlier, Dr. Lena de Grummond, professor of library science, had begun to procure early children’s books to support the Library Science program. She spent countless hours writing to authors and illustrators of contemporary children’s books to acquire original material. Today, more than 1,300 authors and illustrators are represented in the de Grummond Children’s Literature Collection. Dr. Tracy saw the conference as a way to highlight the de Grummond Collection. That first conference was designed to announce the opening of the Children’s Literature Collection. Librarians, teachers, parents and other adults interested in promoting children’s literature were invited for three days of exhibits, workshops and panel discussions led by publishers and editors of children’s books.

In 1969, the conference became known as the Children’s Book Festival, and the first University of Southern Mississippi Medallion was presented as an award for distinguished service in the field of children’s literature. The medallion is awarded for an individual’s total body of work, and each medallion is different. A profile of the honoree is engraved on the face, or obverse, of the medallion, and an illustration from the honoree’s work on the reverse side. Since the first award to author Lois Lenski, the Southern Miss Medallion has been presented to an outstanding array of children’s authors and illustrators.

From 1977 to 1980, Dr. Onva K. Boshears served as director of the festival, followed by Dr. Jeannine Laughlin-Porter in 1980. That year Ezra Jack Keats was invited to accept the Southern Miss Medallion. Keats became a strong supporter of the Children’s Book Festival and the de Grummond Collection, which acquired his personal and professional papers and materials. In 1985, the Keats Foundation established an Ezra Jack Keats Lectureship, with Barbara Cooney as the artist honoree and Brian Alderson as the first Keats lecturer.

In 1994, Dr. Boshears resumed directorship of the festival until his retirement in 2001. Dr. Rosemary Chance became the director of the festival in 2002, followed by Dr. Catharine Bomhold from 2005 until 2010. Assistant director of the festival since 2007, Karen Rowell currently coordinates the festival under the leadership of a steering committee composed of Southern Miss faculty.

In 1998, Miss Fay B. Kaigler generously funded the Kaigler-Lamont Award to be given for distinguished service to children by a librarian or teacher. On December 5, 2001, the festival was renamed in honor of Miss Kaigler, who contributed a planned gift to the festival. Miss Kaigler, a longtime supporter of the festival, taught in the public schools of California and Mississippi for 33 years. She first attended the festival at the invitation of her friend Ruth Lamont, a children’s librarian from Baton Rouge. Sadly, Ms. Kaigler passed away in May 2012. Her gift will continue the festival’s tradition of encouraging writers to strive for excellence in children’s literature and of providing information to teachers and librarians.

The Power of Perseverance
Katie D. Anderson
How faith, hope and a love of the written word propelled one distracted stay-at-home mother to a six-figure book deal with Amazon, a film deal with Warner Bros., and a potential cosmetics deal. Katie D. Anderson shares her inspiring story of teaching herself to write and never giving up on her dreams.

International/Global Picture Books and Literacy Lessons in Elementary Classrooms
Carolyn Angus, Nancy Brashear, PhD and Kristin Sipper-Denlinger
For our exploration of outstanding international/global books, we will share text sets and perfect pairs of books and teaching ideas for use in K-6 classrooms that engage students in reading, conversation, research and writing and identify the related Common Core state standards.

Becoming Margret Rey: The Life and Career of Margarete Elisabeth Waldstein, 1925-35
Ann Mulloy Ashmore
“Becoming Margret Rey” draws upon archival photos and artifacts from the Rey literary estate housed in the de Grummond Children’s literature collection to trace Margarete Waldstein’s odyssey years from her graduation from the Klosterschule in 1925 until her marriage to Hans Rey in 1935. Background research broadens the narrative of Waldstein’s early career and places it in the context of interwar Europe. Also discussed are the major influences in her life and the character and artistic sensibilities of the more mature Margret Rey.

Banned Books Booktalking Palooza -- Try This for Your Next Banned Books Week Celebration!
Kathy Barco and Valerie Nye
Valerie Nye and Kathy Barco have presented sessions on intellectual freedom at the Children’s Book Festival and were especially honored to speak in 2009 when Judy Blume was the Medallion winner. An encounter following their presentation that year inspired Valerie and Kathy to produce their latest book, True Stories of Censorship Battles in America’s Libraries (ALA Editions, 2012). They will present booktalks on books that have been challenged or banned as a model demonstration for booktalking programs in school and public libraries.

Books Are Ice Cream Not Broccoli: Reaching the Reluctant MG and YA Reader
F.T. Bradley
Step in the shoes of a reluctant reader, and brainstorm different ways to show books as entertainment—by listening, fostering reading habits, and connecting books to popular entertainment. This interactive session will cover how to reach reluctant readers, with room for open idea sharing by attendees.

Boys Will Be Boys: Using Guys Read Books in the Classroom
Anna Brannin
All boys hate to read, right? Not necessarily, but for those that think they do – there’s hope! Jon Scieszka’s Guys Read books provide many opportunities for curriculum tie-ins. This session will present information on how you can effectively use various excerpts from these books in the classroom, and in turn, get those guys reading!
2013 WORKSHOP AND BREAKOUT SESSION DESCRIPTIONS

Let's Make a Game! Creating Your Own Games to Use in the Classroom or Library
Anna Brannin
Learn how to create your own games that will secretly test students on their reading skills while they're having fun. Examples will be shown including Book Bingo and Clementine Jeopardy (hint hint – know your Pennypacker!). Audience participation is a must, so get ready to spin that wheel or name that book, and you could win a prize!

Eudora Welty's Daring Life
Carolyn Brown
“Eudora Welty's Daring Life” is an introduction to the life of Pulitzer prize-winning author Eudora Welty. Carolyn Brown's young adult biography, A Daring Life: A Biography of Eudora Welty, is the first young adult book devoted to the life of the Mississippi writer. A sampling of never-before-seen photographs made available by Eudora Welty's niece, the Eudora Welty House and Visitors Center, and the Mississippi Department of Archives and History will be shown as Brown explains how Welty's personal life and writing career were affected by major events of the 20th century.

Old-Fashioned Storytelling
Dianne Butler
Storytelling is a vocal art of passing old (and new) traditions to our children and must not become a lost art! So come enjoy some of the old stories from your childhood. Get involved in several stories by becoming a well-known character; audience participation is a MUST! In this fast-paced workshop, you will get several good ideas for stories to take with you. Come and enjoy.

Can Young Children Read and Write Information?
Yes, They Can!
Dr. Charlene Carter and Dr. Jane Claes
Can kindergartners read and write information? The answer is a resounding, “Yes!” Common Core Standards and standardized testing require that children use information texts at a very young age. This session will model strategies to help a young child discover new ways of thinking about information sources including books and media. Discover your inner child as we explore the world of information using oral, written and visual language.

Making Common Core Connections in Your Library Collection
Dr. Jane Claes and Dr. Janet Hilbun
Are you overwhelmed by the Common Core Standards? Help is here! This session spotlights books and media that will help you connect your students with the Language Arts Common Core Standards. A reading list will be provided to participants.

A Creative Look at Graphic Novel Writing and Drawing
Chuck Galey
With constant interaction with participants, Chuck takes them on a quick tour of the history of the graphic novel, a curious exercise where participants work to provide the correct order of sequence to a story’s illustrations and finally to writing with pictures a short, three-panel illustrated graphic novel. Participants will leave the workshop with an understanding of the creative process for writing and illustrating graphic novels. Lesson plans for Chuck’s workshop will be available online and meet Common Core Standards.

We Don’t Like to Brag, but We’re Superheroes: How We Got Our Capes
Emily Grossenbacher and Ally Watkins
Libraries and bookstores don’t have to view each other as competition! This session will discuss how a sharing of resources can benefit both establishments and the surrounding schools and community. Examples from a successful partnership will be discussed.

Using the Picture Book to Teach Story Structure
Sarah Frances Hardy
Sarah Frances Hardy will show how to teach basic plot structure in creative writing using the story arc found in character-driven picture books. She will provide a character development worksheet, which can be used with students, and she will show teachers how to use the worksheet to create a story with rising tension, conflict and resolution. This process can be adapted for use with all ages of students, from first grade through high school, and incorporates Common Core Standards.

Community Involvement and the Classroom
Jo S. Kittinger
This is an exploration of picture books that opens discussion of community involvement and activities appropriate for children in grades 2-5. Jo will talk about her books Rosa’s Bus, The House on Dirty-Third Street and A Breath of Hope, as well as a variety of books by other authors. In addition, a handout will list possible community-building activities.

Meet The Magnolia Children’s Choice Award
Magnolia Award Committee
This session will introduce the Magnolia Children's Choice Award, present the current list, and provide information on ways to participate. Successful programs centered on the Magnolia Award will also be presented.
Lois Lenski: Storycatcher
Bobbie Malone
Lois Lenski developed her own blend of mentoring/promoting/obtaining materials for her realistic regional stories by working with librarians, teachers and students around the country. The result of such collaborations generated a number of regional novels, almost more anthropological than fictional, with the author’s focus on inculcating empathy in her readers. Ultimately, the teachers became accomplices and assistants in her storycatching adventures, continuing to reach out and support the author and one another as their collaborations turned into abiding friendships.

Convincing Teens That Reading’s a Choice, Not a Chore
Beck McDowell
Turn your reluctant teen readers into book lovers by giving them the ownership, time, materials and motivation to read. A former NBPTS middle and high school language arts teacher, now a young adult author with Nancy Paulsen Books, an imprint of Penguin, offers tips on designing reading programs that engage middle and high school students. Attendees will leave this session with reading lists that work, an efficient grading system, ideas to enlist parent and administrative support, special projects to build local and online communities, and lesson plans for student-made review sites and book trailers.

A Wild Discover: Turn Boys from Reluctant to Ready Readers, Researchers and Writers
Heather Montgomery
Web-shooting worms? Bomb-dropping sea life? Leeches up the nose? Nonfiction author Heather Montgomery will share specific strategies and model informational texts that capitalize on the wackiness of nature to hook boys. Turn on their curiosity, expand their passion for inquiry, and set them loose into the land of discovery – your library!

Planning a Successful “Author Visit” with Skype
Nettie Moore, Denise McOwen and Kay Hutcherson
Learn from first thought to follow-up how to plan and implement a successful author visit using Skype. Session will cover locating and confirming authors, marketing the program and getting a good audience, and successfully conducting the interview. Kids love the technology of Skype, and Skype author visits are much more affordable and sometimes even free.

Getting Personal Between the Covers: Subversive Storytimes and “Out”–Reach for Nontraditional Families in Socially Conservative Communities
Jamie Campbell Naidoo, PhD
This session explores how librarians can offer subversive family storytimes by using children’s books that redefine gender norms and family compositions to be inclusive of LGBTQ families. It also addresses how librarians can use subversive books such as those with single parents, ambiguous family constructs and androgynous characters to promote “rainbow family values.” Children’s books from the Rainbow List, Stonewall Awards, Amelia Bloomer List and Lambda Literary Awards will be highlighted, along with suggestions on how libraries can personalize services to reach out to these families.

Young Authors’ Conference
Reneé Nicolo
This session will provide step-by-step tools for educators and librarians to have a successful author/illustrator visit and promote student writing.

A World of Books: Using Books to Learn About Our Globe
Claudia Nisbett and Nancy Varian
Our society today has become increasingly aware of the need for children to learn about our world by learning about the lives, cultures and environments of other countries. Both fiction and nonfiction books will be shared in the workshop, as well as great activities to bridge the books to a study of other countries and cultures. In addition, ideas will be shared on how to set up and facilitate a “Trip Around the World” or “A Global Village” for your school or library.

Anne Frank and The Soldier With the Golden Buttons: Teaching Holocaust Novels
Claudia Pearson
Although the Common Core Standards mandate an increasing emphasis on nonfiction reading beginning in 2014, students will continue to read at least one novel about the Holocaust as part of the standard course of studies, and fiction may indeed be a better format for educators to use to address hard truths about many subjects. This paper will include discussions of the Diary of Anne Frank, The Book Thief, The Soldier With the Golden Buttons and Milkweed.
Using Children’s Literature to Integrate the Arts
Brenda Pritchett
Exposing children to literature leads them to borrowing ideas to incorporate into the creative processes used in the arts. Librarians and teachers have the opportunity to develop these avenues using children’s picture books while aligning them with the Common Core Standards. This session will explain the benefits of arts integration, describe the art strands, and provide examples of children’s books for integrating the arts into your setting.

Breaking the Barriers of Culture Through Fiction
Kim F. Ridley
Do you know of students with inclusion issues simply because of their race or culture? In The C. Walker Adventure Series, young readers travel to various countries meeting a variety of cultures, giving educators an opportunity to investigate within the classroom the wonderful quilt of humanity that makes up our world. In this session, attendees will discover ways to unlock the door of knowledge that allows teachers the opportunity to introduce children to unfamiliar cultures.

Read Alouds That Rock Across the Curriculum!
Diane Z. Shore
Rhyming read-alouds aren’t just wonderful for storytime. They’re great for introducing new concepts, theme units and chapters in all subjects, including language arts and math. Learn how to use rhyming read-alouds to increase students’ vocabulary, stimulate imaginations, develop attention, listening, communication/writing and cognitive skills, and build background knowledge, all of which lead to independent learning.

Everywhere You Turn “A Good Book!”
Sammie Thorell
Picture a long table overflowing with props, costumes and hats, and books. I will incorporate these items in an energetic presentation of good books read to children over the last 20 years in an elementary school’s library. The presentation will include ideas gleaned from Mississippi Whole Arts sessions, the Children’s Book Festival and children’s book reviews.

Maud and Miska Petersham: Picture Book Pioneers
Lawrence Webster
This is an examination of the life and work of this surprising husband and wife team, who illustrated more than 100 books during 1917 and 1962, 50 of which they wrote. The presenter is the author of a just-published, full-length biography of the Petershams and curator of an exhibition of their work. She conducted the bulk of her research at the de Grummond Collection and will use material unearthed there in a 30-minute illustrated presentation about the importance of the Petershams in the context of early 20th-century children’s books.

Aesop’s Fables in the de Grummond Children’s Literature Collection
Teresa Welsh
The more than 600 animal fables attributed to the Greek slave Aesop have been an enduring influence on children’s literature. This presentation reviews research on the history of Aesop and examines some of the oldest and most unusual volumes of Aesop’s Fables in the de Grummond Collection, the dates of which range from the 16th to the 21st centuries, from the oldest item in the collection, Aesopi Phrygis Fabellae Graece & Latine, to the most recent versions published in 2012.

Choosing Exceptional Books for Beginning Readers
Cynthia Williams
Are you interested in learning how to start children on the path to lifelong reading? This session, presented by a member of the 2013 Geisel Book Award Committee, will prepare attendees to evaluate books for children just learning to read on their own. Learn the elements of “Beginning Reader” books and a brief history of the genre. Explore some of the most current books published in the genre in addition to past winners of ALSC’s Theodor Seuss Geisel Medal.

Make It, Take It: Picture Book Possibilities
Nancy Wright
Take home engaging, hands-on activities that benefit all learners, especially reluctant readers and writers, as they respond to picture books. These interactive, practical techniques will also demonstrate ways to implement the essential features of sheltered instruction for English language learners.
