PS 101 – American Government.
An introduction to American national government and politics. (3 hours).

PS 201 – Great Issues of Politics.
An introduction to the central concepts, issues, and questions of political life. (3 hours).

PS 212 – Political Analysis.
This course introduces and examines a variety of data analysis techniques appropriate for political science. (3 hours).

PS 330 – United States Foreign Policy.
Theory and practice of American foreign relations with emphasis on contemporary case studies. (3 hours).

PS 350 – Political Systems of the Modern World.
A survey of major foreign political systems, with emphasis on advanced industrial democracies. (3 hours).

PS 405 – Women and Politics.
Examines feminist political theory, the role and status of women in U.S. politics and public policy issues related to women. Prerequisites: Junior or Senior status. (3 hours).

PS 428 – Topics in Political Philosophy.
A special topics course in political theory, focused on concepts and others not covered in the general survey courses. Topic varies. (3 hours).

PS 455/WGS 455 – Women and Human Rights.
A comparative examination of the global struggle to expand and protect women's human rights. (3 hours).

PS 471 – Public Personnel Administration.
Examines the U.S. Civil Service and Merit System and its impact on employees and government. (3 hours).

PS 489 – Civil Rights and Liberties.
An analysis of the role of the U. S. Supreme Court in protecting individual rights. Primary focus is on litigation involving provisions of the Bill of Rights. (3 hours).

PS 491 – Proseminar in Political Science.

An undergraduate seminar devoted to topics selected by the supervising professor. May be repeated once for credit with change in content. Prerequisite: Consent of instructor. (3 hours).